CHSU STANDARDIZED PATIENT PROGRAM

HELP TRAIN THE VALLEY'S NEXT GENERATION OF PHYSICIANS

 NO ACTING EXPERIENCE REQUIRED

The College of Osteopathic Medicine at California Health Sciences University (CHSU) is looking for people like you to portray patients and family members (adults only, aged 25 – 65 years old) to help train the next generation of future physicians to serve the Valley.

The role you will play as a standardized/acting patient will include:

- ★ simulating physical symptoms
- ★ exhibiting emotions of a patient or family member
- ★ presenting medical history to the training medical student

You will help to create a real life scenario for our students and enable them to learn how to diagnose and treat patients.

Compensation will be provided to those that qualify to participate.

As a paid participant, you will be required to:

- ★ Apply
- ★ Attend an interview
- ★ Participate in a training session

We are currently recruiting the first group of participants to train in July for scenarios scheduled in September.
